Democracy

In Britain adults elect MPs, who make laws and decide how the country is run. Without this, just one person might be able to make all the laws and that would not be fair.

Democracy

What does it mean to us?

We vote for our School Councillors
and House Captains

We have a say about what happens in our school

We help to decide which charities to raise money for

The rule of the law

In Britain we have a police force who make sure people do not do the wrong thing and break the law - this means that we are safe.

The rule of the law

What does it mean to us?

We understand the importance of rules, and know that they protect us and influence our behaviour

We create class charters, developing fair rules

We understand the consequence of breaking rules

Individual Liberty

In Britain as long as people aren't breaking the law, they can live as they choose and have our own opinions about things.

Individual Liberty

What does it mean to us?

We know everyone has rights and responsibilities

We know that we need to work within boundaries to make safe choices

We can make your own choices in school: in lessons, playtimes, clubs, homework, etc.

Mutual Respect and Tolerance

In Britain people might not always agree with other people, but we try to show respect for their thoughts and feelings.

We can give respect to others and we can expect other people to show us respect.

We accept that other people might have different beliefs than ours and they may believe in different religions.
